It is not possible to convert the results into a data frame because the length of the vectors differ. The way Ebay stores the price, there is a buy it now price and the current bid price and both of them get scraped leading to a difference in the length of the vectors. I haven't been able to figure out how to fix this.

Therefore to create a data frame I am going to use the same Ebay site but now limit the results to "Buy it now", which only has a single buy it now price
